

BRING BACK HEALTH CARE

The nursing shortages in the news every day will have a domino effect for years to come. Turning this around means investment. And that's not just money. Decision-makers must become truly invested in nurses, health-care professionals, and their patients. Sick people jammed in hallways should be seen as a tragic failure of the system, not business as usual. Nurses overwhelmed by impossible workloads must be the cause for urgent action, not more empty promises.

The logo for the Ontario Nurses' Association (ONA) features the letters 'ONA' in a white, sans-serif font, centered between two white curved lines that resemble a stylized arch or a protective shield.
